PREFACE

The history of the Whelchel family in America portrays a fascinating story of a pioneer people who migrated, settled and shared in the development of a free nation.

Tradition and research throughout the years have established the Whelchel name to be of German origin. Historical research revealed that a certain Francis Whelchel, Sr., the first arrival, landed in Philadelphia in 1739 on the ship "Snowy Betsy" sailing from Deal, England—and came from the Palatinate State of Germany. Somewhat later, but just before the Revolutionary War, another Whelchel - a Dr. Samuel Whelchel and his bride came from Germany to America and settled amid the descendants of Francis Whelchel, Sr.

It is Francis Whelchel and his descendants for which this Genealogical Record has been copied and arranged. The large numerals, I, II, III etc. indicate the heads of the original families, while the letters A, B, C etc. indicate the second generation or the children of the head families. The smaller numbers and letters indicate the third, fourth, etc., generation. In many cases nine generations have been located.

The spelling of the name Whelchel has remained almost constant. Although Welchel, Wielchel and Wilkie were among the different spellings found. The name is generally pronounced with the first "h" silent.

The Whelchels of Indiana settled for the most part in Hamilton County and in and near Fortville. Many of the old haunts have been covered by the Indianapolis Water Company just west of Fortville, Indiana.

CHAPTER ONE
GENERATION I
FRANCIS WHELCHEL, SR. (17 - 179)

Francis Whelchel, Sr., migrated from Germany to America and settled in Albemarle County, Virginia, about 1745. In 1750 he married Ann Stockton, the daughter of Davis and Sarah Stockton, who had migrated from Northern Ireland. The name of "Davis" has been handed from child to child throughout the Whelchel history.

Francis and Ann Stockton Whelchel remained in Virginia for a number of years. Their first four children were born there. Just prior to the great Revolutionary War they moved their family to the 96th. District of South Carolina and settled on a farm on the banks of Broad River, Cherokee County. They remained there the rest of their lives. Francis Whelchel, Sr., died there sometime after 1790 and was buried in the Old Gethsemine Church Cemetery on Gilkrees Creek near his home.

During the entire War, Francis Whelchel cared for the sick and wounded soldiers. He was known and called Doctor Francis Whelchel.

Dr. Francis Whelchel, Sr., and Ann Stockton Whelchel were the parents of eight children which will be known as the second generation. These eight children were:

- I. Davis Whelchel, Sr., born in 1752 in Virginia
- II. Francis Whelchel, Jr., born in 1754 in Virginia
- III. Dr. John Whelchel, born in 1756 in Virginia
- IV. William Whelchel, born in Virginia
- V. Elizabeth Whelchel, born in South Carolina
- VI. Patsy Whelchel, born in South Carolina
- VII. Hannah Whelchel, born in South Carolina
- VIII. Anne Whelchel, born in South Carolina

CHAPTER TWO

PART I

DAVIS WHELCHEL, SR. (1752 - 1833) - GENERATION II

I. Davis Whelchel, Sr., the first child of Francis Sr. and Ann Stockton Whelchel, was born in 1752 in Virginia on his father's farm. He died in September 1833 on his farm in Hamilton County, Indiana.

A few years prior to the Revolutionary War he moved with his parents to South Carolina on the banks of Broad River, Cherokee County. Here he met and married Nancy Barnes on March 28, 1776. Nancy was only 14 years of age. She was born January 21, 1762 in South Carolina and died October 26, 1846 in Bates County Missouri, in the home of her daughter, Keziah Whelchel.

Davis Whelchel, Sr. enlisted in the War in 1775 and served as a ranger; private, spy, lieutenant and major under various commanders and leaders. One was his cousin Captain Whitesides. Other officers under whom he served were Captains Terrell, McMullen, Jefferies, Thompson; Colonels Neel, Thomas, Fair, Steen, and Brandon. According to the different pension claims of Davis and his brothers, all had served as comrades throughout the War under the same officers. Nancy Barnes Whelchel applied for a Pension in 1844 while in Missouri.

Following the War, the young Whelchels, like many other families braved the wilderness and its dangers to wend their way westward. On September 23, 1787, Davis, Sr. transferred his service pay from South Carolina. He was not listed in the 1790 South Carolina Census. His daughter, Jemima, was born in Tennessee, so it can be assumed that between 1781-1794 he and his family pushed their way westward to Tennessee. They lived in Tennessee a number of years as their youngest child, Davis, Jr., was born there in 1809. In the 1820 census he was in Hamilton County, Indiana. Davis, Sr. and Nancy Barnes Whelchel with a part of their family settled on the top of the hill on a farm in the Northwest Corner of Section 1 Fall Creek Township, Hamilton County, a bit northeast of Germantown, now a part of the Lake owned by the Indianapolis Water Company. They lived here until the death of Davis, Sr., September of 1833. He was buried on the farm. There are three graves on this farm - one was that of Davis, Sr., one was that of Francis Whelchel, born in 1782, a son of Davis, Sr. and Nancy Barnes Whelchel, and the other grave was that of Mary Whelchel, the wife of Davis Whelchel, Jr.

After the death of Davis, Sr., his wife, Nancy, with her son John and wife Catherine, her daughter, Keziah and her husband William Whelchel, and her daughter Edamiah and husband David Torrance with their families again started a trek westward in covered wagons. They settled in Cedar and Bates Counties, Missouri. Nancy Barnes Whelchel took sick in the home of her son-in-law David Torrance but was later moved to the home of her daughter Keziah Whelchel and died there in October 1846. Nancy often spoke of her Uncle Charles Barnes who lived in South Carolina and was attacked by the Indians during the War

While the Whelchel family sojourned in Tennessee, they were closely associated with the Mayberry family, either as relatives, or friends. The name of Mayberry became a Whelchel family name. The Davis, Sr. family included a Nephew, William Whelchel, born in South Carolina in 1787 whose father had been reported killed in the Revolutionary War. Later, this nephew married Keziah Whelchel, the daughter of Davis, Sr. and William's first cousin.

Davis, Sr., and Nancy Barnes Whelchel were the parents of 11 children:

- A. William, born about 1778 in South Carolina
- B. John, born in 1780 in South Carolina
- C. Francis, born 1-13-1782 in South Carolina
- D. Keziah, born in Tennessee
- E. Charles Barnes, born in Tennessee
- F. Mary, born in Tennessee, about 1792
- G. Jemimia, born in Tennessee, in 1794
- H. No record and no name known
- I. No record and no name known
- J. Edamiah, born in Tennessee in 1804
- K. Davis Leander, Jr. (Turk), born in Tennessee in 1809

CHAPTER FOUR

GENERATION II III

PART I

DR. JOHN WHELCHEL — (1756 - 1837)

III Dr. John Whelchel, the third child of Francis I and Ann Stockton Whelchel, was born in Virginia 10-11-1756 and died in Hall County, Georgia 3-14-1837. He was buried in the New Church Cemetery near Gainesville, Georgia. He married Abigail Davis 7-15-1784 in Union District, South Carolina. She was a sister to Judith Davis, wife of Francis Whelchel Jr. II. Abigail was born 6-10-1764 and died 10-17-1859 in South Carolina.

Dr. John attained distinction as a doctor of malignant diseases. In mid-life he moved his family to Gainesville, Georgia. So many of his descendants are found in both South Carolina and Georgia. The boys reared their families in South Carolina while Judith reared her family in Hall County, Georgia. Dr. John's pension claim was quite complete. His name also appears as Whelchel, Whitsel or Weitzel. He enlisted 5-25-1777 and served as private in Capt. James Stein Company and Col. John Thomas' S. C. Regiment; also, in James Terrell's Company. Colonel William Wofford's S. C. Regiment and Colonel Brandon's Regiment. He was in the battle of Rocky Mount and engagement at mouth of Fishing Creek. Also, King's Mountain, Black Stocks and Cowpens which was only 29 miles from his home. Here he was severely wounded. After recovering, he enlisted again and was in the battle of Eutaw Springs. Dr. John's brothers Davis, William and Francis Jr. were his comrades during the Revolution; so states the letter to W. C. Randall from Veterans Administration, Washington, D. C. of 10-31-1939 taken from Claim w. 6498.

Dr. John and Abigail Davis Whelchel's children were:

1. Samuel, born 5-14-1785 in South Carolina. He married Mary Crawley.
2. John, born 10-27-1787 in South Carolina. He married Miss Tate.
3. Francis, born 5-21-1790 in South Carolina. He married Nancy Crawley, a sister of Samuel's wife.
4. William, born 5-6-1793.
5. Judith, born 6-18-1794 in South Carolina. She married Daniel McAdams.

CHAPTER FIVE

GENERATION II III - PART I

WILLIAM WHELCHEL — (1758? - 1790?)

IV William Whelchel, fourth child of Francis Sr. and Ann Stockton Whelchel, was born in Virginia, probably about 1758. He lived on Broad River in South Carolina when his son was born in 1787. Little is known about him. Some say he was killed in the War. However his son related that his father had told him about his Uncles. So, it is probable that he died because of the War sometime around 1790-1794. William Whelchel had one son.

1. William Whelchel, born in 1787 in South Carolina. He was reared in the home of Davis Sr. and Nancy Barnes Whelchel. Davis Sr. was a brother of William Sr. Young William married his first cousin, Keziah, the daughter of Davis Sr. and Nancy Barnes Whelchel. They were the parents of 12 children. (For details see the Chapter Two, part two No. D)
